LITTLE DEMAND

Saturday's Rise in Prices Too Much For the Market.

SLIGHT RECOVERY AT CLOSE OF THE DAY.

GREAT PRESSURE TO SELL

New York, June 12.—The stock market today did not fulfill the promise held out by Saturday's short market of a revived market and prices for stocks. The selling attracted by Saturday's sharp rise in prices proved Saturday's sharp rise in prices proved for much for the limited demand to selded decisively selling the selling decision of the selling decision absorb. The market yielded decisively and the first selling was followed by additional burdens of the same source.

The turn in the temperature of the market had no positive news developments to account for it. The fact was quickly demonstrated, however, the market was still strictly in professional lands. The professionals increased the weight on the market when the instability of prices was perceived. The holidays were general abroad, and deprived the market of one possible source of demarket of one possible source of de-mand which might have been stimu-lated by the developments of peace prospects. This influence was modi-fied by professed doubts from some sources of the substantial basis for the hopes of peace. This feeling was the result of opinion rather than of any actual occurrence that could be pointas changing the conditions long

The government crop report, which appeared Saturday afternoon, proved to be the source of such varying infer-pretations as are common in the grain narkets at the critical period of the naking of the crops.

Notwithstanding the decline in con dition of winter wheat, the dimensions of the total crop indicated awakened hopeful spirit. This was modified by the making of surmises of possible deterioration since the date of the govthe making of surmises of possible deterioration since the date of the government estimate. Further reductions were reported in pig iron prices, but the iron and steel stocks were relatively firm all day and developed positive strength in the later dealings. The special pressure against Amalgamated Copper first connected in the minds of professional operators with a compraint having its sources. Per description of the date of the government and the second of the government of the second of the government of the second of the government of the gov strength to inferences from the new auspices of the Equitable Life Assur-ance society. Discussion of that sub-ject was less optimistic than on Satject was less optimistic than on Saturday, and it was urged that the fortheoming report of the state superintendent of insurance must be awaited to form a definite judgment on the new plan. There was much conjecture also touching the identity of the syndicate to which the Equitable stocks had been to which the Equitable stocks h call for the return of government de-posits from July 1 to July 15 promised relief from one possible embarrassment relief from one possible embarrassment of the money market in connection with that of the yearly settlements. The tone of the weekly comments on traffic, of railroad officials, showed some conservatism. LOCAL MARKETS

Retail Produce Dealers Meet All Demands of Influx of Visitors.

SEA FOOD FOR ANGELENOS

NATIVE STRAWBERRIES AND RASPBERRIES HAVE CALL.

Anticipating a strenuous call this week from the hotels and restaurants, the lo-cal retail produce dealers had a heavy supply on the stalls yesterday, and, though everything catable was bought up to a large extent before night, they promised that there would be a fresh supply this morning. The demand came because of the large number of strangers in the city, principally from Los Angeles, and every one of them was hungry. In order to satisfy the demand of the Angelenos an extra supply of sea food was laid in, and in many instances the prices ruled lower than at any time this season. Large-sized mackerel had the call and next in order were sea bass and then prawns.

The fruit market ruled steady, with first-class offerings. There were a few crates of native raspberries presented and they were quickly purchased at 15 cents per box. This particular fruit has not been prominent on the stalls this season, but from now on there will be a plentiful supply until the end of the month. The berries offered yesterday were of superior quality and were evidence that the Utah horticulturists are rapidly coming to the front and in another year will be able to compete with their Californian brethren.

The strawberries put up yesterday were in the main of Utah growth, and they were of much better quality than any offered heretofore this year. The dealers said that from now on until the close of the season, about two weeks hence, all the strawberries on the local market will come from the beds in the vicinity of Salt Lake, and they anticipated that the crop would be larger and superior to any of previous years. The cantaloupes presented are those grown in southern California, but by the end of the famous Rocky Ford variety, which has had such a tremendous call in the eastern states during the past two years.
